To Whom it May Concern:

Pauline Centers was a student teacher at Rock Ledge Intermediate School during the second quarter of the 2014-2015 school year. During that time, I had the opportunity to observe her teaching skills and work with her and her cooperating teacher on her planning, methods, and delivery of instruction.

Pauline has many assets in the classroom. She plans for each student's strengths and their different learning styles. Her lesson plans include methods to reach all students, with emphasis on having students understand why it is important for them to learn each lesson.

Pauline's classroom management skills are very effective. She has students working in pairs and small groups to have them describe their answers to each other. Her proximity control allows her to ensure that all students are on task and also gives her feedback on the effectiveness of her teaching and the students' learning.

Pauline has a calming influence on her classroom. Students are engaged, eager to learn, yet relate well to her predictable delivery. With a tricky classroom clientele, she has developed a way to make sure that they know what to expect so they can be ready to learn and be successful as students.

Pauline would be an excellent candidate for a teaching position. She works diligently to make sure that her students receive the best instruction. I would recommend her for any teaching opening.
